“ Don on the dock at the Norfolk tail waters at the end of one of our many fishing outfits. The fog had come up and it seemed the perfect picture. This is where his ashes will be spread. I miss you my love, I Love You Always

“ A picture Don looked at quite often! He was a very proud father, proud of Wilson for graduating College, proud for joining the Peace Corp, proud of him for knowing what he wanted from life and not being afraid to say so - and to go get it! Don, indeed was a very proud father!

“ This is Don at our favorite fishing spot. On one of many trips here, years ago, we met and older couple from Alabama. They were making a heroic attempt to fish, but were barley getting their books wet. At the end of the day, Don't offered them our catch and they were thrilled! While the two gents cleaned the fish, we ladies connected via Facebook and are still in contact today. She was the first person to reach out after

Don passed.
Its sometimes little things that make lasting friendships.

“ Some of our most favorite times were spent with friends around a campfire. Telling stories, jokes and tall tales. You were always there to welcome someone new to our fire with a hearty handshake and makings of a cocktail or a s'more. So many new friends we met in our travels, so many wondrous sights we saw! I loved every minute of it babe!
I miss you!

“ Don and I used to do this cute thing where we would tap each other on the forehead three times and with each tap we would say the words YOU. AINT. RIGHT.

Don, you may not have been 'right'....but you were just perfect for me! I Love You Always.
